BRANCH OF NAVAL SERVICE. OBJECT-LESSON. WEEK'S

RECENT DEVELOPMENT OF THAT

History of the Four Crack Boats of the United States Navy Which Visited This Port Recently-How They Operate and What They Cost.

The recent visit to Richmond of the four crack torpedo-boats of the United States navy was particularly interesting, as an object lesson of the wonderful advance that has been made within the last The use of torpedoes in naval warfare was proposed and even attempted at the end of the last and the beginning of the present century, but no successful application of them was made until the tion of that body recently held in Dancivil war of 1861-'64. Great Improvements have, however, been made of late years, and a modern torpedo-boat is built entirely of steel, the plates often not exceeding 1-16 of an inch in thickness, as, in order to get the necessary high speed. the minimum weight consistent with the necessary strength is of the first im-

THREE CLASSES OF BOATS.

There are three classes of boats, known as the first, second, and third. Those of do not expect them to resent insult to the first are canable of keeping the sea on the first are capable of keeping the sea on their own account; the second are for arbor defence, and the third can be car-the risk of striking a blow too hard, or, ried on board a ship.

The boats that visited Richmond last week were of the first class. They were low-lying craft, painted black, so as to escape notice as much as possible in time of war. Each boat carried four Hotchkias guns and three torpedo projectors. The two largest boats con-tained two main engines, sixteen small engines, and three boilers. They are than thirty knots an hour, and with their bunkers full of coal—they carry seventy-six tons of fuel—can run for no six tons of fuel-can run less a distance than 2,500 miles.

WHAT THEY COST.

The cost of these boats is about $144,000 each-a very modest sum, considering the fact that a single, well-aimed torwill annihilate any battleship affoat, and as the cost of an ironclad is considerably over $3,000,000 the increase of the torpedo flotilla is regarded in naval circles as a great economy. A tor-pedo-boat carries a crew of about twen-ty-eight men, and a warship generally had on board several hundred souls. Modern torpedo-boats are built in nine watertight compartments. They have no armor protection, and their heaviest plate is the keel plate, which is only a quarter of an inch thick.

HOW TORPEDOES ARE FIRED.

A torpedo can be sent upon its murderous mission with positive accuracy, a distance of 600 yards, and under some conditions of 800 yards; while they have been known to hit a target at 1,000 yards. A torpedo-boat generally works unfer cover of darkness, or, in thick weather, as then it is much easier to approach neir adversary. When an attack is contemplated the boats single out their vessels and approach slowly, as rapid moving through the water would create a "wake" which would catch the rays of the search-lights and make known the torpedo-

A trigger is pulled, and the torpedo is carried overboard by a light launching charge of powder. The missile of destruction first makes a dart downward, and then continues, at first with an undulatory motion, and then in a straight line for the vessel attacked. The locomotive torpedoes are a numerous class, the principal being the Whitehead, Lay, Simms, Brennan, and Ericsson. The boats which visited Richmond use the Whitehead, and the Howl gyroscope.

CAMPAIGN. INTEREST IN THE

Good Vote Polled-Six Candidates in the Field-Omission of Gregory's Name-Other South-Side Items.

While with all loyal and wide-awake Democrats the campaign will not close until sunrise Tuesday morning, the last public demonstration of their fidelity to Democratic principles in Manchester will be held to-morrow night at Hull and Sixth streets. At this place is a large, vacant storehouse, and here the closing rendezvous will be held before the tramping ranks of Democracy will gather around that standard, which is borne aloft by J. Hoge Tyler, Edward Echols, and Andrew J. Montague.

On this occasion Hon, Isaac Diggs and Mr. Charles M. Wallace, Jr., will be the speakers. There may also be other The City Committee are especially desirous that there shall be a large attendance at this meeting-in fact, they want it to be an earnest of the great Democratic onslaught for what Democrats believe to be right on Tuesday. Though, as Major Daniel said in his magnificent address in Leader Hall Friday night, the Democrats are in the hollow of the reaction wave of the wonderful Bryan campaign of last year, the present war which the Democrats have waged has not been devoid of interest and much good.

GOOD VOTE TO BE POLLED. In Manchester on Tuesday a good vote will be polled, and this city, snugly situated on the south side of the James, will give a good majority, not only to her Democratic nominees for the House of Delegates-Messrs, Harry B. Owen, of Manchester, and Robert G. Wood, of Chesterfield county—but to the support of the State ticket. Manchester has been especially favored in the matter of speakers this fall. Hon. A. J. Montague, the Democratic choice for Attorney-General; the senior senator and matchiess orator of Virginia, and her representative in Congress, John Lamb, have been sent to her aid, and have lifted their voices in her streets for the cause of Democracy But it is not questioned that Manchester will make good returns. Messra Owen and Wood have spoken repeatedly to the people, and made an active canvas. PLENTY OF CANDIDATES.

The nominees for the House of Delegates, from whom the voters of Pow-hatan, Chesterfield, and Manchester, as a district, will choose two representatives are as follows: Democratic-Messrs. Robert G. Wood and Harry B. Owen; Populist-Messrs. J. Haskins Hobson and James M. Gregory, and Republican-Messrs, J. W. Nunnally and E. B. Howle, the latter an Independent.

Your boy may not be the one to suffer this degradation, but others' mothers' hearts have been broken because of this shame and this disgrace and who knows whose turn may be next? We raise our boys to be manly. The perpetrators, however, seemed to be thirsting for money only, as nothing else thirsting for money only, as nothing else has been missed. In entering it became necessary for the raiders to break down two heavy doors, which they did with much credit to themselves. Persons living nearby heard the sounds of blows made upon the door, but attributed them to the stamping of Mr. Daffron's horse in a stable in the rear of the store building.

on the State Medical Board of Examiners for the ensuing four years.

The report of the work done in the Richmond Homoeopathic Dispensary was submitted by the physician in charge, Dr. Harry S. Corey. This institution was found to be in a most flourishing condition. It was organized in April of this year by a board of lady managers, with the homoeopathic physicians as an advisory board. The work done in the dispensary has gradually increased each month until lately, when the attendance has somewhat fallen off on account of the recent rainy spell. The attendance for April was 307; May, 21; June, 454; July, 490; August, 582; September, 620; October, 526. This makes a total of 3,300 for the seven months. The dispensary is open six days in the week from 1 to 3 o'clock, and consists of eight separate clinics, as follows: Medical, surgical, woman's; eye, ear, nose, and throat; skin, dental, children's, and nervous diseases. In the evening the annual address of the president was read. Many suggestions looking toward the furtherance of homoeopathy in the State were offered by the president, Dr. Taber, of Richmond.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Dr. F. P. Webster, of Norfolk; Vice-Presidents—Drs. R. S. Perkins, N. H. Riddick, and W. P. Moncure; Secretary, Dr. Harry S. Corey; Treasurer, Dr. Noah Jackson; Censors—Drs. Hardy and Allen, of Norfolk; Drs. Williams and Marcy, of Richmond, and Dr. Young, of Lynchburg.

The important papers to be read next year will be by Dr. E. C. Williams, of Richmond, and the discussions to be led by Dr. Taber, of Richmond, and Dr. Perkins, of Norfolk. The next meeting of the society will be held in Richmond, some time during October, 1898.

Method of Aerating Milk Before

ADVANTAGES.

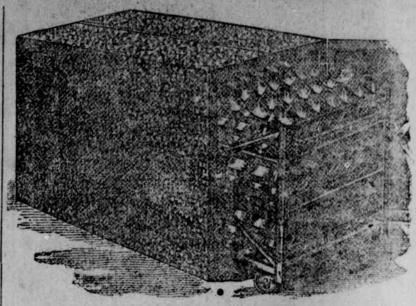

The delivery of milk in glass jars possess many sdvantages over the old system, and has been adopted in most, if not all, of our large, progressive cities, where rigid hygienic laws progressive cities, where rigid hygienic laws prevail. This system is perticularly desirable in Richmond, owing to the material used in making our streets and alleys, which pulverizes into dust, and blows into every conceivable opening, and despite the best efforts of the most careful handling, necessarily gets into the cans, measures, and vessels for receiving the milk, and the milk itself. In the ordinary course of measuring, the most honest dr ver will make measuring, the most notest are ver will make mistakes, sometimes giving too little, sometimes too much, thus in many instances creating dissatisfaction. With the glass jar system your measure must be absolutely accurate or you detect it at a glance.

Under the old system—drawing from the bottom of a can—some customers get very little cream, while others receive more than their proportion (provided all of the misk is drawn from the can). With our system, the glass jars are filled before the cream rises, and each and every jar contains its just proportion of cream, which after standing, rises to the top, and can be plainly seen. Each glass jar is and can be plainly seen. Each glass jar is newly capped every time it is used, never using the same cap a second time. With the glass jars unopened, the milk can be safely placed in refrigerators without fear of contamination.

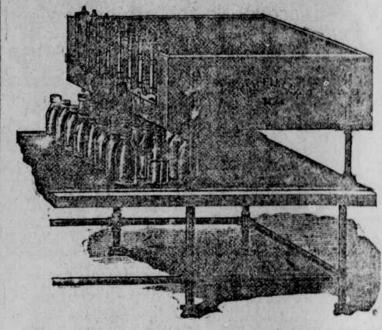

CLEANLINESS.

Few housekeepers, who rely on servants ever examine the vessels in which their milk is received, and in many instances the dairyman is blamed for delivering tainted milk, when in reality the trouble is due to the carelessness of a servant. With the glass jar system this is impossible. Before using, each jar is thoroughly boiled in soap and water, then well washed with a stiff bristle brush, operated by a machine making twenty-five hundred revolutions a minute, after which they are passed to another making twenty-five hundred revolutions. other machine and thoroughly rinsed. The jers ere then placed on an iron rack and rolled into an iron STERILIZING CHEST, doors closed, and subjected to intense heat. See cut at top right hand corner.

STERILIZING CHEST.

The next cut represents a metal glass jar filler, which fills eight jars at one time, and rests upon a non-absorbant stone table.

Thus it will be seen that our method of cleansing is in keeping with the most advanced scientific principles, and far excels anything that can be done by hand. To this department of our plant we particularly invite the attention of all medical men.
